

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns a method comprising the steps of grinding, fine grinding, and polishing a surface of an optical article made of transparent thermoplastic material, one of the steps of fine grinding or polishing consisting 5 of treating the surface with a solvent or a mixture of solvents. The invention is applicable to lenses for spectacles.